

Dr. Margaret Kirwin

Dr. Kirwin is presently retired after serving as interim president for academic affairs at The College of Saint Rose before the appointment of Dr. Carolyn Stefanco. She has served in a variety of senior leadership positions at the College including 10 years as Dean of the Lally School of Education. Dr. Kirwin is an expert on the accreditation and assessment of programs in teacher education, as well as other education related programs beyond teacher education. She is the College's expert on NCATE accreditation and is expert on all regulations promulgated by the State Education Department on program approval and program quality. Dr. Kirwin is frequently called upon to serve on advisory task forces at the state and local level, including service to regional school districts in the public sector and in parochial school environments.
